Rady Children's Hospital is also another resource to contact that should have professionals who do neuropsychological testing.

To my knowledge, the only time your medical insurance would pay for this testing is if your child had a severe medical problem, like a severe brain injury or stroke.

Otherwise, if you simply want your child tested for a possible diagnosis of a learning disability, you would pay for that testing out-of-pocket.

The diagnosis from this testing would have to be one that appears on the DSM-V and is consistent with the ADA (Americans with Disabilities ACT) in order to receive accommodations on the SAT or the ACT.
